Continuation of 2. NOTE: The proposed amendment to claims 9, 10, 15, and 16 raises the issue under USC 112 second paragraph because the phrase "inhibits T cell activation of monocytes" is ambiguous since monocytes and T cells are two separate types of cells. It is not clear if the claimed polypeptide inhibits T cell activation or monocytes activation and whether the inhibition is directly or indirectly. The paragraph pointed out by applicant does not disclose polypeptide "inhibits T cell activation of monocytes". Further, the proposed amendment to claims 9, 10, 15 and 16 raises the of enablement and written description that would require further search and consideration because the claimed polypeptide now "inhibits T cell cell activation of monocytes". Finally, the proposed amendment fails address the enablement and written description rejections in the office action mailed 7/2/03, for example, "nucleotide seuqence which hybridizes under moderately or highly stringent conditions". Note the specific condition for hybridization used by applicant is not recited in the claims. As to the enablement and written description rejection of a fusion protein (claims 46, and 48) comprising the claimed polypeptide and a "heterologous amino acid sequence", there is insufficient guidance as how to make, much less how to use the claimed fusion protein because the structure of the "heterologous amino acid sequence" in the claimed fusion protein is not disclosed. Since the "heterologous.
